

SPARTANS APPOINT DIRECTOR OF PLAYER PERSONNEL

David Ginorio is an experienced leader with seven years in the Transportation and Logistics Industry; where he served as a Dispatcher / Account Manager for numerous trucking companies throughout NJ. Aside from dispatching, David also held a position as a Bench Technician for Echostar Communications; better known as Dish Network, where he dealt directly with customers on various issues involving and not limited to technical issues, payments, etc. With all of this experience under his belt, David has now become an On-Site Manager for a staffing company, Staff Management Group, where he oversees his team of 50-60 workers on a daily basis. Not within his responsibilities, David also helps people in need of work in this struggling economy.

Throughout the years he has also been a great role model for the children in his community by taking part in various programs such as "10,000 Mentors" where he and other mentors like him have come up with various ideas to inspire troubled kids to want better things for themselves as well as show them how important it is to respect one another. David had also taken part in a Conflict Resolution Program with Motivational Speaker Kashim Garrett where they both visit many Elementary Schools and High Schools explaining and showing many different ways of resolving conflicts. He and Mr. Garrett Role-play different conflict situations varying from Conflicts at Home, School, or even on the street. Then they show how to resolve them.

David wishes to help the New Jersey Spartans players maintain the positive presence that they have already instilled in the community, both on the field and off. He also looks forward to serving as Liason between coaches, management, and players.

The New Jersey Spartans are proud to welcome David as our Director of Player Personnel and are looking forward his contributions.
